

Not all oil is created equal.

Russia changed the global energy conversation. Where your oil comes from matters more now than ever. The International Energy Agency (IEA) indicates oil and gas will continue to play an important role in the global energy system well into the future. Not only is Canada right next door, our industry is a clear and indisputable global leader in environment, social and governance (ESG) standards. If not Canada, who are you entrusting your country's energy security to? Learn more at
